

Distributions from Vanguard Real Estate Index Fund

Important tax information for 2021

For 2021, all share classes of Vanguard Real Estate Index Fund may report the following distributions to investors (if generated by the fund during the year) on Form 1099-DIV: ordinary dividends, nontaxable distributions (return of capital), long-term capital gains, and unrecaptured Section 1250 gains. The example below shows how to report these distributions on your income tax return.

- A Box 1a—Total ordinary dividends. If the dividend total reported in Box 1a from all of the Forms 1099-DIV you receive is more than $1,500, you must list each dividend by source on Schedule B, Part II, line 5, and enter the total on line 3b of Form 1040. If the total from all sources is $1,500 or less, you don't need to complete Schedule B. Simply report the total on line 3b of Form 1040.
- B Box 1b—Qualified dividends. This box shows the amount from Box 1a that's qualified dividend income (QDI) eligible to be taxed at 20%, 15%, or 0%, depending on your ordinary income tax rate. You must enter your total QDI on line 3a of Form 1040.
- C Box 2a—Total capital gain distributions. If shown, this amount includes long-term capital gains as well as any unrecaptured Section 1250 gains (if distributed by the fund in 2021 and reported in Box 2b).
Report the amount from Box 2a on Form 1040, Schedule D, line 13.
- D Box 2b—Unrecaptured Section 1250 gain. If shown, this amount must be reported separately on Schedule D, line 19. To determine the amount you should report on line 19, complete the Unrecaptured Section 1250 Gain Worksheet, which can be found in the Instructions for Schedule D. For additional information, see the IRS Instructions for Form 1040.
- E Box 3—Nondividend distributions. These amounts represent a tax-free return from your investment and are used to reduce your cost (or other) basis before calculating the gain or loss on any shares you sell. Nondividend distributions that exceed an investor's cost (or other) basis must be reported as capital gains (even though they're reported on Form 1099-DIV as nondividend distributions).
- F Box 5—Section 199A dividends. If shown, this is the portion of the amount in Box 1a that may be eligible for the 20% deduction on qualified real estate investment trust (REIT) dividend income. For additional information, see the IRS Instructions for Form 1040. You should contact a qualified tax professional about your eligibility to claim the 20% deduction for the amount in Box 5.

2021 capital gain or loss from the sale of fund shares as reported on Form 1099-B

In addition to the distributions Vanguard Real Estate Index Fund made to you in 2021, you may have realized a capital gain or loss from your sale of fund shares. If so, you must report this amount on IRS Form 8949 and on Form 1040, Schedule D. Vanguard reports gross proceeds and the basis for covered shares from these sales on Form 1099-B. You must also report your cost basis, holding period for the shares sold, and gain or loss.
